Product Overview:

Every business should have a web site. Most already do. Websites can be developed through internet sites and small organisations for just a few hundred pounds.

However, the reality is that these sites are essentially a brochure online – people flick through the pages and make a decision. Is this what you really want?

Advance IT has over 15 years software design experience. Our expertise, and where we can benefit your business, is in bringing true intelligence to your website. We can help promote your company online in an innovative fashion, produce interactive customer and member log-in areas, allowing you to effectively manage the content on your site.

Using our software development expertise, we can embed your website with intuitive product guides, custom user areas or purchasing systems.

We help you measure and maximise your benefits from your online presence, but in addition we can:

- Optimise your site for search engines
- Include and assist with social networks
- Add e-commerce
- Get sites set up quickly
- Advise on advertising through your site to gain revenue
- Create and send newsletters
- Send SMS messages to customers with important news
- Link your site into mobile apps for a continuous user experience
- Ensure the security of your website

Our full design and consultancy service will understand the requirements, aims and goals of your investment; and then assist you to deliver these successfully.
